DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 27 October 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Because applicant argument on page 8, the present specification, embodiments of foregoing may allow "a phase located in a thermally-sensitive area to generate less heat than another of the N phases" is not claimed in the claim and in regards to first one of N voltage regulator converter phase to output first current and second one of the N phases to output a second current which is control by converter which is disclosed in (figure 1A, item i1,i2,i3----in) and clearly disclosed N phases..

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) The invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) The invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

2. Claims 1-4 and 10-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Burstein et al. (U.S. patent # 6,853,169). Burstein et al. disclose the claimed subject matters an apparatus (figure 1, 1A, 3 and 3A), including a voltage regulator converter (figure 1, item 16), a voltage regulator controller (figure 1, item 18), first and second current (column 5, line 50-55), first current is different from second current (column 6, line 55 and 65), the N-phases (claim 5), a second resistor (column 6, line 35-45), first and second feedback and current sensor (column 2, line 1-10).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 5-9 and 15-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Change (U.S. Patent # 6,218,817) in combination with Burstein et al. (U.S. Patent # 6,853,169) and Talbot (U.S. patent # 6,865,682 B1).

Change discloses claimed subject matters a system (figure 4), including a microprocessor, a double data rate memory (column 3, line 1-5), a voltage regulator (figure 4, item 30). However Change does not disclose the utilization of the technique for a voltage regulator converter, wherein the first current is different from the second current and a motherboard coupled to microprocessor. As explained in the claims 1-4, 10 and 14, above, teaches the utilization of the similar technique for a voltage regulator converter, wherein the first current is different from the second current and Talbot teaches the utilization of the similar technique for a motherboard coupled to microprocessor (figure 1). It would have been one having an ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Change's system by utilizing the technique taught by Burstein et al. and Talbot for the purpose of improve the efficiency of the system.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
